

Pafuri - Kruger National Park

Hutwini Trails Camp

Join Devon Myers and Grant Telfer of Wanderings of Africa as they guide you through a place that reminds us the world is bigger than ourselves and awakens that quiet piece of wilderness still alive within you.

Tucked into the remote northern reaches of Kruger National Park, the Pafuri Wilderness Area is a wild, enchanting landscape where adventure lures you to explore ancient sandstone ridges dotted with baobabs and winding floodplains beneath mystical fever tree forests. Here, where the Luvuvhu and Limpopo rivers converge, nature flourishes in the land of giants, where all things great and small find their place.

This is a place that stirs the spirit of exploration. Tracks betray the movements of animals along worn game trails, dusty paths reveal stories from the past, and, like those before us, we find refuge from the heat beneath giant sycamore figs beside mighty rivers.

We don't just walk the land. We listen to it. Every track, every birdcall, every breeze has something to teach. This is our life's work, and it is our greatest privilege to share it with you. - Devon & Grant

In this forgotten corner of the continent, a small, dedicated wilderness exploration outfitter leads adventurers on foot through these wild spaces, reviving the ancient tradition of exploring with bare senses and open hearts. Connected by the rhythmic crunching of the earth beneath the soles of each person's boots, trailists reconnect with the land in its rawest form where every sign and track, scent, and rustle in the bush tells a story. These trails offer more than wildlife encounters; they are a journey into the soul of Africa, where the wild and the human spirit meet under expansive skies and the weight of natural history, rekindling the thrill of the unknown.

WHERE THREE COUNTRIES MEET

At its heart lies Crooks Corner, a legendary meeting point of South Africa, Zimbabwe, and Mozambique. Once a haven for ivory hunters and outlaws seeking refuge from colonial authorities, today the ghosts of those rogue adventurers linger in the warm air, blending with the timeless rhythm of South Africa's last truly wild frontier.

About Hutwini Trails Camp

The Pafuri area offers unparalleled wilderness experiences on foot and a very limited road network within the region makes for a true wilderness feeling. Hutwini Camp is conveniently located on the banks of the famous Luvuvhu river and set up to be used as a base camp and launch pad to explore the area. This simple yet sumptuous, little semi-permanent tented camp consists of four guest walk-in tents accommodating a maximum of 8 guests with en-suite flushing loos and the famous hot water, bucket showers that are a highlight after a days walking. Lanterns and fires light up our evenings and conversations are only interrupted by the calls of hyena and leopard in the darkness.

Why walk with

WANDERINGS OF AFRICA

Leading you on this journey are Devon, Grant, and the trails guiding team at Wanderings of Africa. With calm confidence shaped by decades of experience, they bring together a rare mix of deep bush knowledge, a strong sense of safety, and an unwavering love for the land.

A Journey Through Pafuri, Guided by a lifetime of Learning and Experience

A Pafuri Wilderness experience is more than just a walk through one of Africa's wildest corners. It's an invitation to reconnect with the natural world, to tune in, slow down, and truly see. This is a place where nature speaks, and your guides help you listen.

Devon and Grant, the founders of Wanderings of Africa, have spent over 40 years combined guiding trails across some of Africa's most remote and beautiful landscapes. This isn't just a profession for them; it's a calling.

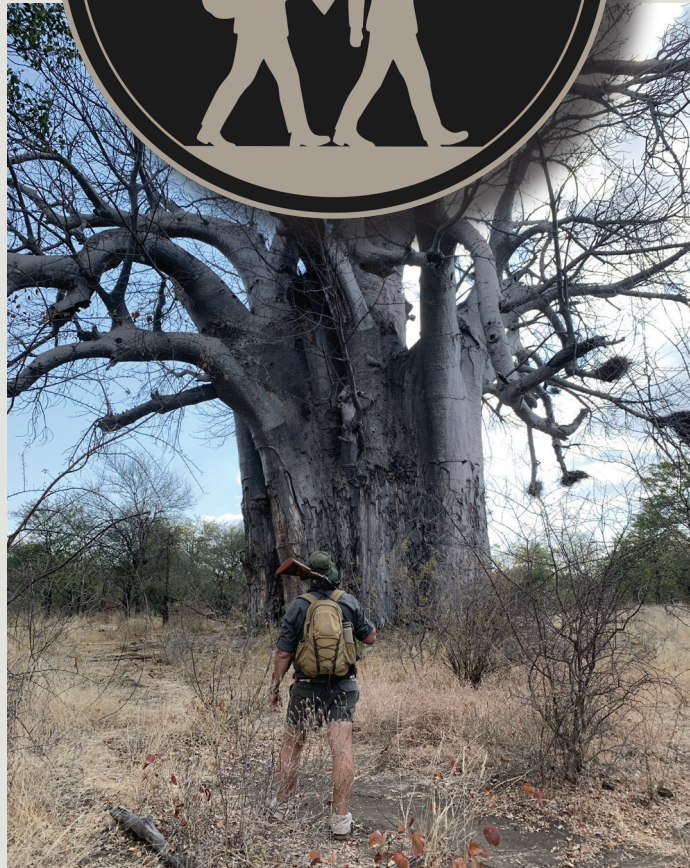

They've dedicated their careers to mastering the art of walking safaris: training walking guides across Southern and East Africa, investing in the right equipment, and consistently sharpening their skills to lead with both assurance and care.

They hold all the necessary qualifications and more. From advanced first aid to navigating remote terrain, every detail is covered, allowing guests to relax into the experience, knowing they're in safe, capable hands.

It's not only about what they know. It's how they guide.

Their style is immersive, thoughtful, and deeply intuitive. Whether you're reading tracks in the sand, quietly observing a herd of buffalo from a ridge, or walking silently beneath fever trees, their guidance creates a space where discovery feels personal and profound.

Devon, Grant, and the team don't simply show you the wilderness. They help you become part of it. With humility, curiosity, and deep respect, they reveal how everything connects—and how you, too, belong in this wild, extraordinary place.

Testimonial

PAFURI PARADISE

A group of mates and I joined Grant Telfer & Devon Myers from Wanderings of Africa on a 4-day primitive trail in the Pafuri area of the Northern Kruger, a route that stretched from the bottom sections of Lanner Gorge through to Crooks Corner.

If you have never visited this wilderness area before, it can only be described as the perfect mix between Mana Pools & Gonarezhou, but in South Africa. Ancient Baobab forests, Fever Tree thickets, natural oasis pans, big game and plentiful bird life.

There is quite simply nothing else like it in SA, made even more special by fact that we got to experience it on foot, sleeping under the stars each night. You may sit there and think that a primitive trail isn't for you. But it's more than a walk, more than carrying a pack.

It's a dedicated few days of disconnecting, with a deep connection to the area. And the team from Wanderings of Africa couldn't be better at their jobs as trail guides.

Thoroughly knowledgeable, deeply passionate & obsessed with safety in an area known for some of the most volatile big game in Southern Africa. If trails are your thing, then this is your thing!
